

Bristol Extracts

4376 Rt 64, Canandaigua, NY 14424

(800) 603-0913

bristolextracts.com

Dear John,

Thanks for working with us this winter, developing the perfect algae for our needs, working with CBD hemp plants. Throughout the months, we have used the different Purus algae mixes at every step of the way, from propagation through harvest and we are delighted with the results of the chlorella mixture in particular, and for a multitude of reasons.

First, our germination rate with the chlorella algae was 100%, which was astounding enough. But the rate at which our seedlings grew was beyond encouraging, literally growing to the second phase, and repotting in two-thirds the time as our time-tested SOPs.

Second, the stems on the plants that we used the chlorella algae were much heartier than those we grew with our standard SOPs. There was a very visible difference. The plants also responded with considerably more vegetation and ultimately higher yields, although by the end of the experiment, we were using the algae on all of our plants so the difference is difficult to say.

Third was pest, mildew and fungus control. I was skeptical of your claims. I was. But you were accurate. The plants we fed the chlorella algae to had ZERO aphids, ZERO powdery mildew and zero fungus growth. It was incredible. We did experience some algae growth in some of the pots but it may have been to over-feeding. All of these issues were held in check, with considerable effort, but still appeared on most of our plants without the chlorella algae in their diets, until we added the algae to their diets. No sulfur burning, no spraying necessary.

We found that the chlorella is a terrific supplement to our current SOPs, as opposed to a replacement. It is better to continue with a good microbes program, however, our growers DO NOT wish to ever grow without this algae

Bristol Extracts

4376 Rt 64, Canandaigua, NY 14424

(800) 603-0913

bristolextracts.com

program. Our growers have, however, stated that they will not stop using the algae unless it is actually improved upon, which would be an amazing accomplishment.

Congratulations on an amazing product. We will have all of our farmers using it throughout the season.

Looking forward to a prosperous harvest.

Sincerely,

Eric Blazak

CEO Bristol Extracts

917-743-5534

eblazak@bristolextracts.com